POSTOFFICE INDEPENDENT AFTER TODAY

D. Ripley Jackson Becomes First Postmaster Here

HALLET IS ASSISTANT

Former Supt. Issues Statement to People of City

Glendale today ceases to be a branch of the Los Angeles postoffice and becomes an independent postoffice. For one day the office will be of the fourth class and will then be raised to a firstclass office.

Captain D. Ripley Jackson, Glendale's first postmaster, took charge of the Glendale postoffice today. One of his first official acts after receiving his commission was to appoint George Hallett, former superintendent of the Glendale branch as assistant postmaster. Citizens are indeed lucky in holding the services of Mr. Hallett as assistant postmaster as he is an efficient and capable administrator and has served the people of Glendale well.

Following is a statement by Mr. Hallett:

To the citizens of Glendale: This being my last day as superintendent of the Glendale branch of the Los Angeles postoffice, I desire to express to the people of Glendale my sincere appreciation of their hearty co-operation especially during the time of usual congestion owing to the holiday business. The citizens of Glendale in general have shown a hearty interest and spirit of co-operation that is wonderful.

Through Mr. White, superintendent of schools in Glendale, we were given the use of any schools that we cared to select to be used as sub-distributing stations for Christmas mail. He also placed the janitors of these schools at our command, advising them to furnish any tables or anything that was required in order to assist in handling the mails. This offer was taken advantage of with very gratifying results. The firm of H. E. White, Inc., gave us the use of their new building, corner San Fernando and Brand, which we have used and are still using for a sub-distributing station. They also gave us the use of their wheeled stock and we even had their large Moreland truck when we were crippled for cars. Dr. Harrower, with his usual wonderful support and co-operation, offered us the use of a part of his laboratory for receiving packages, placed a truck at our disposal, allowing the same to remain with us over the Christmas week-end. Captain Loving responded promptly to a hint for assistance and placed his private limousine at our command, driving himself and delivering parcel post. He was not satisfied with complying with our hint but daily, without any further request, presented himself at the postoffice, to inquire if he could be of any assistance to us.

Mr. P. P. O'Brien, acting postmaster at Los Angeles and all of the employes of the Los Angeles office have given us wonderful assistance even arranging to truck

EAST-SIDERS ARE SURE BONDS WILL BE CARRIED

Organization Will Continue Work During Day

The last campaign meeting of the East Glendale Welfare Association which has been boosting for high school bonds and for the Lukens site at the corner of Broadway and Verdugo road, was held Tuesday night at the Broadway school where final plans for getting out the vote were discussed by those who have been active in pushing the passage of the bonds. All were optimistic, believing that the citizenship of the district will appreciate the gravity of the issue and vote the bonds by an overwhelming majority. They were also exceedingly hopeful of the appeal which the Lukens site would make to disinterested voters.

C. M. Pomeroy, a member of the campaign committee who is leaving today for Indiana, asked Mrs. Lindsay of East Palmer avenue to serve in his stead and announcement was made that campaign headquarters which have been established at the office of Mrs. Mabel Tight, 612 East Broadway, would be open all day with an attendant to receive telephone calls and dispatch automobiles to bring in voters.

No Man Is Useless While He Possesses Friend Says Writer

No man is useless while he has a friend. It was Robert Louis Stevenson who uttered this, and James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" says that he knew what he was talking about and Mr. Foley proceeds to prove it in his interesting way.

"Blessed is he who has ideals," says Mr. Foley, "and who battles with wind and wave and storm, but struggles always to hold his true course." And you will find that reading Mr. Foley's contribution this evening you will get inspiration and be the better for it.

Mr. Foley every evening sends you a message through this paper. You shouldn't miss it.

Henry James sees a lot of "bunk" in stories of the Japanese getting a corner on lumber.

John Pilgrim looks back 20 years and recalls a sweet face and a darling girl. And he leaps over the 20 years and finds the girl again—but you must read it yourself to appreciate his feelings.

Dr. Frank Crane reviews another book, rather a habit of the doctor these days. There are features of interest, able editorials and other matter worth turning to on the editorial page this evening.

POLICE QUICK TO GET EVANS' CAR

Find It Abandoned After Apparent Joy Ride by Robbers

Through the efficiency of the Glendale police department, W. E. Evans, 333 North Orange street, has recovered his automobile, stolen last night.

Mr. Evans reported to the police yesterday evening about 5 o'clock that some one had taken his car from the corner of Harvard and Brand boulevard. A description of the car was given to all officers of the Glendale police department and this morning about 5 o'clock Patrolmen Blix and Nunn found the car abandoned at the side of the road. It had evidently been taken and used for a joy ride and then left. Mr. Evans was notified and later claimed the automobile.

BOOTLEG RAID IN CHARGE HAYNES

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Roy Haynes, Washington, national prohibition director, was expected here today to supervise personally the New Year's anti-booze drive. More than 100 special operatives will accompany Haynes. Fifty cases of acute alcoholism, the result of moonshine and other illicit liquors, are being treated at the Cook county hospital.

Secret Service Agent Who Trailed Wall Street Bomb Suspect

According to reports from Warsaw, Poland, the police there have arrested a man by the name of Wolfe Lindenfeld, alias William Linde, as a suspect in connection with the Wall street bomb explosion of September 16, 1920. The police say they made the arrest at the request of the American department of justice and claim the man confessed to his part in the crime. The photo shows Dr. Paul Altendorf, who is mentioned in the dispatches as one of the United States secret service operatives who traced Lindenfeld to Warsaw and caused his arrest. Dr. Altendorf is here shown in the uniform of colonel in the Mexican army. He held that rank while unearthing German plots against the United States in Mexico during the war.

WEATHER STORIES CONTINUE TO BE POPULAR

Glendale Unanimous in Declaring Enough Is Enough

Southern California — Tonight and Thursday unsettled, probably rain; Los Angeles and Vicinity—Partly cloudy, unsettled weather tonight and Thursday, but probably no rainfall of importance.

Every editor in and around Glendale who is sufficiently enlightened, knows that the readers of newspapers are going to look for a weather story every day, until J. P. Jupiter Pluvius takes a hop-skip-and-jump into the Lake of Oblivion and Old Sol comes back to take up his unfinished work.

There isn't much doing in weather today. That is, not much to speak of. Dead turkeys and weather have been popular for several days past, but like the dead turkeys, the weather is soon going to be filed away in the archives under the heading of "Unusual."

"Unusual" is the best alibi in the world for popular resorts, winter and summer. Atlantic City, Palm Beach, Asheville—they all have their "unusual" heading in the weather files. The unprecedented advent of sky juice recently deposited in and around Glendale has done much to eliminate unnecessary conversation, family quarrels and the like. Husbands have been thinking and talking of the "probable outcome" of the storm and wives have been wondering what effect the rain would have on their new Christmas furs—and things like that, diamonds and other gems included.

Glendale has had enough rain. Everyone is unanimous in that decision. There is no room for more. Basements and cellars where they used to be ample room for a "pet stock" fancier to visit early and often, are now miniature Salton Seas and mispraced lakes. No one can open a window in Glendale today. They are all stuck up. Ceilings and walls are carrying new souvenirs of the "unusual" and landlords are learning a new and vigorous language.

It might have been worse.

FRENCH WILL NOT GIVE UP SUB PLAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The effort by the arms conference to limit the use of submarines ended in failure today when France flatly turned down the American program. The discussion of submarine limitation is now definitely closed, members of the American delegation declared.

WILL GET BONUS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—"Some sort of a bonus for former soldiers will be enacted by the house this session," Representative Mondell, republican floor leader, said today, following a conference with President Harding.

Small Local Industries Promise Big Development

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

When you begin to look them over you will find that Glendale possesses more industries than you may have supposed. They are mostly small industries now but they will grow as the city grows and as the demand for their products grows.

Taken as a whole they are a good class of industries, making little smoke and little noise and employing a good type of workmen who also are good citizens. Those over-night residents of this fair city, who oppose the bringing in of manufacturing plants on the vague ground that they may prove to be more or less of a nuisance or that they may dump into our midst an undesirable class of alien citizens, are invited to look over the industries already here and see for themselves how remote their fancies are from actual facts.

John H. Gerrie

Take the upper end of the industrial district, beginning at the Burbank city line and following the Southern Pacific tracks down to the old Tropico district. There's the Highway Lumber company, the Sorghum Syrup company, all useful to Glendale. Then there's the United States Compressed Rubber Tube company, making a new tube for automobile tires that may or may not revolutionize the tube business. Near it is the Fred Meveley window shade factory that ought to develop into something big. The Cunningham Construction company, turning out gear rings, is a healthy baby.

Another recent acquisition is the Superior Washing Machine company, turning out a hundred machines a day to make life pleasanter to the housewife and with its output completely sold for a year ahead. This may grow into a humdinger of a plant.

No less than three clay products plants are in operation in Glendale and this city is on the way to become famous for its tiling and architectural embellishments. The Tropico Potteries, Inc., making a specialty of vitrified clay sewer pipe and architectural terra cotta and with a monthly pay roll of $20,000, is Glendale's star industry. Then there's the Clay Craft Potteries, Inc., making tiles and decorative features for lawns and buildings and the Concrete Building Tile company, which is now putting up a plant. Clay Craft brings its clay from Death Valley, while Tropico Potteries hauls clay from Riverside county.

Another new plant in the industrial area for which there is considerable promise is the American Agar Manufacturing company. This concern turns out products of the Agar sea grass, similar to Ceylon moss, and imported from Mexico. These products include breakfast foods, soups, jellies, confections, soap and sausage casings. There are also chemical products of a laxative nature. The Agar factory here is the only one of its kind in the world.

Of lumber companies already established there are the Bentley-Schoeneman, the Fox-Woodsum, Glendale Mill company, the Highway, the Tropico-Glendale company and the Independent. There's the Russell-Pierce Furniture Manufacturing company that ought to develop into a big producing concern, the Glendale Sheet Metal Works that is soon to move from Glendale avenue to San Fernando road, the Henry-Brown company, sending Sierra Club ginger ale all over the Pacific coast district, and the Harrower laboratory, carrying the name of Glendale in its literature that is broadcasted all over the United States.

There are other smaller industries such as the Sparr Fruit company, the Karr shirt factory, Glendale Dye Works, Glendale Chemical company, Milo Wheat company, Blossom Bee Honey company and others. None of them has injured the tone of Glendale and each of them has added something to the population and prosperity of the city. There is room and need for many more industries here of similar class. And every incoming producer gives more permanency to the prosperity of Glendale.

P. E. BRIDGE NOW BEING FINISHED

After Long Delay, Structure Is to Be Ready by January First

After long delay, the new Pacific Electric bridge over the wash which separates Glendale proper from North Glendale is to be completed and may be ready for use by January 1.

A year ago, center piers and abuttments were constructed and the railroad sought permission from the City of Glendale to construct a wooden bridge, but municipal officials held out for the steel structure and that is what is now being placed. The heavy side beams are on the ground and track-laying has begun. It has an 80-foot span and will be a single-track affair with switches to enable trains running north and south to use it.

BIG OVATION

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 28.—Eugene V. Debs was given a great ovation as he came down the steps into the railroad station here this afternoon after a journey from the federal prison at Atlanta via Washington. He will stay here until 5 o'clock, when he will entrain with his party for Terre Haute, arriving there about 7 o'clock.

GAS PUMPS WILL HAVE TO BE MOVED

Council Takes Step to Relieve Congestion Business District

The congestion of parking spaces in the business district was responsible for Councilman Davis introducing a resolution at the meeting of the council last night announcing the intention of that body to present an ordinance prohibiting curb gasoline pumps in the business district and to cause all pumps now in operation in the business district to be removed.

According to Councilman Davis' resolution the congestion in the parking spaces of the business district is added to by the curb pumps used by the garages to deliver gasoline. It was stated that motorists drive up to these pumps at all angles and park long enough to secure a tank of gasoline and drive away, adding to the traffic congestion. The ordinance will be prepared and introduced to remove all gasoline curb pumps on July 1, 1922.

DEBS LEAVES WITH UNDERSTANDING WITH GOMPERS

Socialist Leader Makes Up With A. F. of L. Leader

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Eugene V. Debs, free Socialist leader, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, have buried past differences and will work together for general amnesty for political prisoners, Gompers indicated in a statement to the United Press today.

EUGENE V. DEBS

"The American Federation of Labor has been working to free the so-called political prisoners for more than two years," Gompers said. "We shall be glad to have Debs with us."

Official Washington was breathing easier today with Debs out of town. The positive statement of Debs' friends that he was virtually under compulsion to come to Washington and confer with President Harding and Attorney-General Daugherty before proceeding to his home, stirred up a hornet's nest of resentful letters and telegrams.

While waiting for his train, Debs addressed several hundred persons. Debs preached the doctrine of love of mankind and abhorence of war. Two uniformed policemen in the crowd shook hands with him. But just as Debs concluded, the station policeman stepped up and demanded to know whether the Socialist leader had a permit to speak there. On Debs' reply of "No," the officer reprimanded him.

"You are violating the law," he told Debs, and stalked away.

BOND ELECTION FOR HIGH SITE TOMORROW

Citizens of District Vote on $85,000 Issue of Bonds

TWO SITES OFFERED

Much Needed Improvement Will Probably Carry

The big event of the week which is also the big event of the year, which will make or mar the future of Glendale, will come tomorrow, Thursday, when citizens of the Glendale high school district will vote on bonds in the sum of $85,000 for the purchase of a site for a new high school.

Every one at all familiar with high school conditions knows that congestion is acute and that even if the bonds are voted, before a new plant can be built, drastic measures will have to be taken to accommodate classes. The renting of outside quarters and the establishment of double sessions may become necessary. Under such conditions it has been universally admitted that no citizen with the welfare of the town and its young people at heart can fail to vote for the bonds, irrespective of sites. As to location, that has been left to the choice of the voters who will register their preferences on straw ballots and the trustees, who are vested under the law with responsibility for selection of a site, have agreed to be guided by the preferential vote.

The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., and there will be three voting places in the city of Glendale. All residents north of the center line of Doran street will vote at the Central Avenue school, where Arthur Campbell will be the inspector, the judges of election being Willard N. Bott and Catherine B. Henry.

All citizens south of the center line of Doran street and north of the center line of Windsor road, will vote at the household arts building on the high school campus where Thomas A. Wright will be inspector and S. Riley Lyons and Mary L. Houston judges of election.

Electors south of the center line of Windsor road will vote at the Cerritos Avenue school, where Wesley Bullis will be inspector and Hazel Campbell and Cora Hickman judges of election.

Eagle Rock citizens will vote at the Central school building.

Residents in the La Crescenta precinct will vote at the La Crescenta schoolhouse, Louise Erwin being the inspector and Lawrence A. Peters and Rose G. Nettleton being the judges of election.

The voting place of the Tujunga precinct will be the Tujunga school house, the inspector being David Costello, the judges Mary Lewis and Helen Atkinson.

Monte Vista's polling place will be the Monte Vista school house, Edgar F. Lancaster being the inspector and Homer R. Rice and Sanford D. Percey the judges of election.

MOORING MAST TO MAKE FLYING MUCH EASIER

Business of Flying Will Soon Be on Practical Basis

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Perfection of the new American type of mooring mast for non-rigid airships will put the business of flying on a practical basis in this country, in the opinion of army air experts.

The course of a few months will bring safe and rapid transportation by a network of air routes threading their way across the country in all directions, it is predicted, with the setting up of mooring masts as basic points.

The mooring mast, which has been developed by the United States Air Service following its success in England, is to the airship what the garage is to the automobile. Not only does it provide an anchorage, but it also maintains a pipe system by which hydrogen, air, fuel and water are supplied to the airship on its overnight stay. Thus the airship is ready with the morning to depart for its next station.

The American type of mast, which has been successfully experimented with at Langley Field, Va., consists of a structural steel tower held in a vertical position by steel cables. It stands 72 feet in the air and can properly handle any size of airship. After a few slight alterations it will be pronounced perfect, and will be ready for its valuable service throughout the country.

OFFICIALS REVIEW STORM DAMAGE IN GLENDALE

Petition Requests City Manager to Give Aid in Northeast

City Manager William Reeves and several members of the city council are today inspecting flood conditions in the vicinity of Stocker and Campbell streets. At the meeting of the city council last night a petition signed by approximately 100 property owners in the northeast section of the city asked that the city council inspect the retaining wall maintained on the Ross and Thom ranch relative to securing relief from flood conditions.

After discussing the proposal at the meeting last night it was agreed that City Manager Reeves and as many members of the council as could make the trip should meet a delegation from that district on the ground today and make a thorough inspection of the district with a view to giving relief from the flood conditions as complained of by the delegation.

After inspection, City Manager Reeves stated that the city council had reached a conclusion regarding the flood conditions on Stocker and Campbell streets that the only relief that seems possible is a system of storm drains following the old original channel of storm waters in that section along Stocker street to Campbell street.

In former years there was a channel through which the storm waters of the entire northeast section of the city were carried away. Through the years this channel has become unused through building activities and the water has had to seek another outlet. The plan of the city council, as indicated after the inspection this morning, was to secure a strip of land about four feet wide along the original channel of the storm water and install an underground storm drainage system to carry off the waters.

The retaining wall maintained on the ranch of Ross and Thom was also inspected and it was the conclusion of city officials making the inspection that the city could take no action regarding this wall, as it is built on private property. Any damage that is done by the retaining wall diverting storm waters onto other property will be a matter to be settled between the property owners affected and the operators of the Ross and Thom ranch.

PROPOSE SIGNS TO SAVE HUNTERS

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Owing to the unusually large number of deer hunters lost in the Adirondack wilds during the past season, guides ad woodsmen are urging that the state place signs on all ponds, lakes and major trails, with arrows showing the points of the compass and giving the names of the waters and trails. It is thought by those familiar with Adirondack woods, that if such a plan was carried out, a majority of those lost while hunting would soon find their way out. Such a method is sure to meet with some opposition upon the part of those who feel that the posting of the woods might detract from the wilderness charm.

Fashions for Americans

The coat dress of heavy fabric is particularly smart and practical for mid-winter wear. The sketch offers a suggestion for such a costume. It may be made of black velvet and trimmed with suede in contrasting color, the fabric and color scheme being carried out also in the modish tam, or it may be made of velour, duvetyn, or other heavy wool fabric in a two color combination. The matching scarf is detachable, so that when a fur coat or fabric wrap is worn over the frock, or when a fur neck piece is preferred, the fabric scarf may be taken off.

The coat dress and the three-piece costume have vied with each other for honors this season. For dressy wear both have an advantage over the two-piece suit. The coat dress may be handsome enough for any afternoon tea or for restaurant wear, and it may be worn without a wrap if the weather permits, or be covered by a cloth or fur coat when necessary. The three-piece suit grows more popular each season. One very handsome three-piece model recently seen was of maroon broadcloth, a fabric very much favored this season, trimmed with gray chenille embroidery and banded in flying squirrel. Another was of wood brown broadcloth trimmed in henna embroidery, and with the coat lined in henna colored crepe de chine. A smart three-piece costume made of navy duvetyn was trimmed with ciel blue embroidery and pipings.

The three-piece costume promises to be an early spring favorite, quite a number of these styles having been developed for southern resort wear. One recently seen featured a frock with a very low waist line, topped by a square cut, thirty-inch long coat, which was fashioned at the neck only. The material used was dahlia colored duvetyn, with touches of embroidery in black as the trimming.

The Coat Dress Continues To Be a Popular Style

THIS ONE IS A POSER

Small boys often ask embarrassing questions. A preacher was addressing the Sunday school and explaining the significance of white.

"Why," he asked, "does a bride desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?" As no one answered, he went on: "Because white stands for joy, and the wedding day is the most joyous occasion in a woman's life."

Immediately a little fellow piped up: "Please, sir, why do the men all wear black?"

TRAIL BLAZERS AT HOME AFTER BIG EXPERIENCE

Five Glendale Men Brave Mud and Water to Get Home

Five Glendalians, Roger and Bernard Dennison, Stewart McMillen, Wesley Wright and Kenneth Wilde returned last night from San Diego after being marooned there since the football game on Monday. They left Glendale Sunday night at 6 o'clock to attend the football game in San Diego Monday and reached the southern city after driving all night over roads that were almost impassable.

According to Mr. Wilde, the roads to San Diego were in very bad shape and at times the car ran through mud that reached to the runningboard. Four times the party stopped and towed other automobiles out of the mud. Mr. Wilde said that the road to Tia Juana from San Diego was flooded and had been closed for several hours. Parties intending to visit the border resort during the holidays were forced to remain in San Diego.

After the football game Monday the Glendale party found that it would be impossible to leave as all roads were impassable and the stages had even stopped running. They remained in San Diego until noon yesterday. They arrived here at 10 o'clock last night.

The party followed the main boulevard until the Torrey pine grade was reached where flood waters forced them to return to the old Camp Kearny site and turn off onto the inland route. They followed the inland route, coming through flooded Anaheim to Los Angeles.

At times the motorists were forced to get out and lift the rear wheels out of holes where the water had washed sections of the road away. According to Mr. Wilde the mud was so deep at points along the road that their machine cleared a path by pushing the mud along in front of them with the crank case.

When the party reached Anaheim they found the whole country flooded and three feet of water on the main business street. Business was practically stopped in that city on account of the waters.

There are people in San Diego today, according to Mr. Wilde, who predicted that the party of Glendalians would never reach their destination, but would be forced to abandon their car at some point along the road and walk in to the nearest town. They are still in San Diego and the party of Glendalians who dared the muddy roads of the inland route are at home.

Any request that was made from Los Angeles was complied with immediately and with cheerfulness thereby enabling us to operate four windows during the heaviest rush and keep our parcel post delivery up to date.

Mr. D. Ripley Jackson, the incoming postmaster, who will assume charge beginning December 28, has also given to us a very great amount of help and in fact, it is through his efforts the most of the foregoing help from the different firms and persons mentioned above has been accomplished although not assuming charge of the postoffice as yet. He has rendered to us every assistance which we could possibly ask for from any real, live postmaster. All this I deeply appreciate as do all the other employes of the Glendale branch who are welcoming the chance to serve under Glendale's own postoffice.

We have been hampered somewhat by the elements and the unusual volume of mail received due to the rapid growth of the city, also owing to the sickness of some of our carriers due to the exposure during the storm. I have heard no unpleasant words or dissatisfaction expressed at the postoffice and the people of Glendale have shown a good spirit which was imparted to the force in general. Those on the outside do not realize the extent to which the postoffice employes are physically and mentally taxed during the Christmas holidays and during this time could they realize how much a pleasant smile and a pleasant word meant to those on the other side of the window, I feel that every person that came to the Glendale office would have a cheerful word and smile for the employes which has meant so much during this season.

I wish to thank the newspapers for the publicity given to our efforts to please which has done wonders in the way of imparting cheer and good feeling to both the employes and the public.

To suitably terminate my term of office as superintendent and establish a fitting welcome to the incoming postmaster, we found this morning that Jupiter Pluvious had endeavored to enter the office in a manner which was not very pleasing to the occupants. As he entered with such a volume we were obliged to move out of the entire financial section of the office, abandon our windows and endeavor to serve the public through the temporary arrangement at the back of the office. Through it we have tried to smile and trust that our smiles will have the desired effect and ward off any further entrances of our aquatic saint. In every sense of the word, the Glendale branch had all the appearance of a fourth class office of the first water.

I trust that I may have the pleasure of the better acquaintance of the people of Glendale during the coming administration, having been retained by the incoming postmaster as assistant postmaster of the Glendale independent office.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE HALLETT.

A SONG ON MILO WHEAT by T. W. McConnell
You ask me, friends; why really, now,
I haven't much to say;
But I am sure that Milo Wheat
Is for the best today.
Now, some things let me speak about
That you may plainly see
When folks once taste of MILO WHEAT
You'll need no other plea.
For folks who eat this food,
I'm sure you will hear say:
"For strength, health and every ill,
It's best, we know today;
We're living now on MILO WHEAT,
Our bank account will grow,
For we can have a good square meal
For three cents now, you know.
You know our days are perilous times
When all will have a test,
And they will surely want to eat
The cheapest and the best.
It will not be so very long
Till you will hear the call
For MILO WHEAT from every class,
Both rich, poor, large and small.

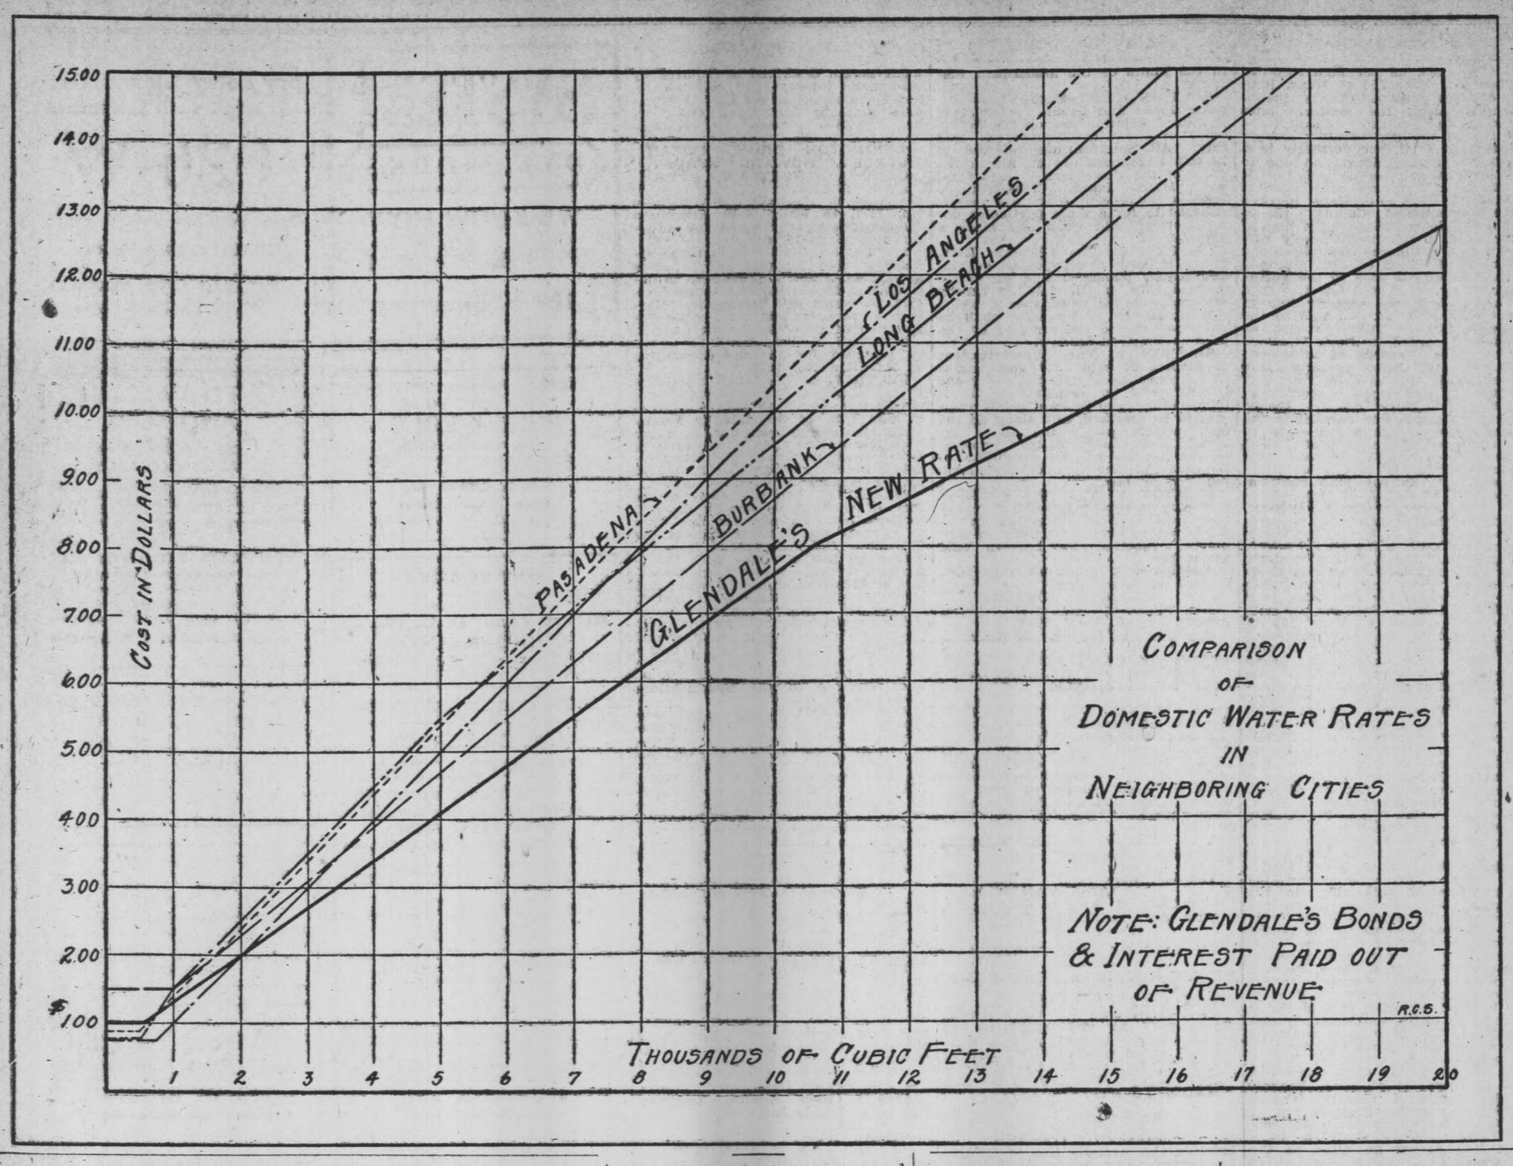
COMPARATIVE CHART OF METER SERVICE RATES



HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

The woman who had been ill a long time lay in her dainty white bed and frowned at her husband, who was trying to measure her medicine for her. It was a difficult task, for there were drops to measure, and the man pursed his lips and wrinkled his brow lest he drop one drop too many into the glass. The woman spoke sharply:

"My dear John," she said, "that makes the third time you have measured the drops, and each time you have thrown them away and had to measure over again. It is making me quite nervous. If you would only be more careful."

As a matter of fact, John was being quite careful. Had he but known it, there was air in the tiny glass medicine dropper, and the drops, instead of coming out of the end of the little glass pippette when he pressed the rubber bulb at the end of the dropper, became elongated and lingered on the end of the dropper. And less than half a drop finally fell into the glass.

John Becomes Nervous, Too

Then John became nervous himself, pressed the tiny rubber bulb frantically, and a quick succession of pale green drops glittered into the little glass. Then he would empty the glass determinedly, being sure that there were more than three drops in the glass—and begin all over again.

And John was not to blame. He was as anxious as he could be to take the responsibility of giving his wife's "heart-drops," but he happened to know that the medicine was a very powerful one and that it was very important that three drops—no more and no less—should be given his wife at the prescribed time.

Just then Anna Dale, who lived upstairs in the pretty apartment that faced the reservoir and the big, beautiful park, drifted down to pay a friendly call and to offer to undertake any little shopping commissions Mrs. Thane might have. For Christmas was not far away, and when one is sick in bed one runs over countless little mental shopping lists that must be attended to.

Neighbor Offers to Help

Then Anna, seeing the despair in Mr. Thane's face, threw off her coat and said:

"If you are perfectly sure that you won't mind, I'd like to offer to do that for you. Giving medicines is a nuisance."

"John should know by this time," murmured Mrs. Thane, waving a lace-clad arm. "Goodness knows I've been having those silly green drops long enough."

"The dropper seems to be out of commission," explained John. Anna, taking it with an experienced hand, squinted at it, held it up to the window, and examined it carefully in the afternoon light.

"Sometimes the rubber cracks," she said. "But I think the trouble is that there is air in it. And where is the fresh water t o dilute the drops?"

"I forgot it," murmured John, making a dash for the bathroom.

Visitor Makes Suggestions

"It's really a good idea to have a little tray in the bedroom to keep the medicine you are taking on, and a clean glass to hold the dropper, as well as a tiny pitcher for clear water, and a clean glass for the drink that comes after the medicine. Then, too, there are those tiny minim glasses one can buy to measure minims."

"Are minims the same as drops?" John asked, returning.

"No; there is a marked difference between the two," said Anna, who had once studied pharmacy and enjoyed it. "And if one expels the air from a medicine dropper by putting a little clear water through it first, then fills it slowly, measuring the drops with an even pressure, there is no danger of an extra drop going into the glass."

And she proceeded to demonstrate, skillfuly, to John's relief.

The above chart was prepared by officials of the Glendale city water department to show to the people that property owners of this city are receiving water service at a rate that is lower by one-third than the rate effective in any other city, not excluding Los Angeles, in Southern California.

The municipally owned water system in Glendale is operating and giving efficient service and at the same time is charging the people a minimum rate for the maximum of efficiency. This rate is appreciated by the property owners and taxpayers for the money it is saving them but at the same time they are overlooking the fact that under the present rate the water department is unable to secure sufficient surplus to provide for any extensions to the system that may be required by the growth of the city, or to replace any pipe or other accessories of the system when the present ones wear out.

Glendale, as indicated by the chart, is getting water at a lower rate than any other city of the Southland and according to city officials will continue to be served at a low rate, lower at all times than in any other city. While no plan of increasing the present rate has been discussed at the city hall either officially or otherwise the above chart indicates that with a small increase in the rate to lay up a sufficient surplus of funds to care for extension and replacement work in the water system could be made without changing Glendale's status as the city with the lowest water rate in Southern California.

LONG TRAIL ENDED WITH ARREST OF TWO RICH MEN

Two and a Half Million in Loot Believed in Their Possession

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—Herbert Cox and Herbert Wilson, alleged master crooks who are believed by federal authorities to have engineered a $2,500,000 series of robberies throughout the United States and Canada, remained cool and unshaken here today in steadfastly denying the accusations against them.

Meanwhile postoffice inspectors and local detectives were closing in a dragnet which they believed would bring forth other members of the alleged clique of international thieves.

Wilson, said to have been the brains of the organization, is a former revivalist and Congregationalist minister of Brownsville, Ore., according to his own story.

"I know nothing of these charges against Herbert," the accused man's wife asserted today. "He told me he was in the oil business."

Wilson returned to Los Angeles from Chicago several days ago and walked into a police trap set for him at his West Santa Barbara avenue home. Deputy sheriffs had to batter in the doors and fire two shots through the man's clothing to force him to surrender.

Cox was arrested Thursday night at San Pedro, as he walked down the gang plank of a steamer just arrived from San Francisco. On the same ship with him were detectives who had been watching him throughout the trip.

Evidence against the two men was gathered after a search by postoffice inspectors from coast to coast, it was said here today.

The case against the accused men is being constructed in secret. Detectives will make no statement as to the further developments which they believe will bring other members of the alleged gang to justice. Newspaper men are not permitted to interview Cox and Wilson.

Representatives of Hale Brothers, Inc., operating department stores in San Francisco and Oakland, are here co-operating with civil officials in an effort to recovery of $85,000 loot obtained in robberies at the two stores, believed to have been committed by the Cox-Wilson organization.

ZONE ORDINANCE ACTION DEFERRED

Citizens Will Be Given Opportunity to Express Themselves

Messrs. R. C. Person and Geo. B. Woodberry addressed the city council last night regarding the proposed zoning ordinance being considered by that body after property owners requestd that a zoning ordinance be adopted to prevent operating of stores and other business houses in the residential sections of the city.

The ordinance dividing the city into three sections—a business, an industrial and a residential section, was drafted and the limits for each district outlined by L. T. Rowley and a zoning committee that served without pay for several weeks. Under the proposed ordinance, the residents of any residential section, by gaining the consent of 60 per cent of the property owners of the block or blocks under discussion, can have that section declared a purely residential section and prevent the building of apartment, rooming or duplex houses within the limits of the section petitioned for, as well as prevent the establishment of neighborhood stores in the section.

This ordinance has had the first reading and at the meeting last night the council indicated that the matter would be laid over until January 5 for further discussion, to give property owners an opportunity to make suggestions. At the meeting January 5 the council will read the ordinance the second time.

KENNEDY ACCUSED BY MOTHER OF WRONG-DOING

Told Witness in Case Madalynne Was Son's Mistress

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—New and startling testimony as to the love affair between Madalynne Obenchain and John Belton Kennedy was injected today into the trial of Arthur C. Burch, jointly accused with Mrs. Obenchain of murdering Kennedy.

Mrs. Mary Louise Wilson, beauty specialist and confidante of Madalynne, asserted from the witness stand that:

Mrs. J. D. Kennedy, mother of the murdered broker, had accused Madalynne of being the common mistress of her son.

Mrs. Wilson, the witness, told Mrs. Kennedy that Belton would commit suicide unless his parents consented to his marriage with Madalynne.

June 28, 1921, was the date fixed for a secret marriage between Madalynne and Belton.

"I had a talk with young Kennedy's mother this spring," Mrs. Wilson said. "I told her of the love Belton had for Madalynne and advised that she give her consent to the marriage.

"'My son does not love that woman,' answered Mrs. Kennedy. 'She is nothing but his common mistress.'

"I tried to convince her that she was mistaken about Madalynne's character and Belton's love for her.

"'You are mistaken yourself,' Mrs. Kennedy told me.

"'Then your son must be a terrible liar,' I retorted."

TOO INTERESTED IN MARINE FORCE

OAKLAND, Dec. 28.—Five men were arrested at East Oakland today when their actions on board an eastbound Western Pacific train aroused suspicion and caused passengers to summon a marine mail guard. The men gave the names of Harry Lee, Henry Bennett, Francis Silva, Roy Garcia and George McCormick. Soon after boarding the train, police said passengers told them, the men began inquiring solicitiously as to whether the train carried marine guards. Finally Peter Altaminerans, marine was called from the mail car and at East Oakland, he took the men from the train and turned them over to the police for investigation.

It is frequently easier to be sure you are right than it is to go ahead.

And one half of society doesn't know how the other got in.

IMMORAL WOMEN FROM SMALL TOWN

Purity League Man Tells Why He Thinks This True

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—More than 75 per cent of the immoral women are from smaller cities and the country. This statement was made by B. S. Steadwell, La Crosse, Wis., president of World's Purity Federation which today opened a 3-day international conference here.

"Of course," said Steadwell, "these figures are not absolutely reliable because it is impossible to secure complete data but I believe they show the situation.

"Girls from smaller towns and country arriving in the larger cities find that their pay is not sufficient and that their virtue is their largest asset. The minimum wage has helped overcome this phase considerably.

Other causes for this condition are that country girls arriving in the larger cities are usually friendless and they have not had a sufficient education."

MRS. M'CORMICK GIVEN DIVORCE

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, divorced her multi-millionaire husband today. Mrs. McCormick was put on the witness stand and in answer to questions of Attorney Charles Cutting stated McCormick deserted her in Zurich, Switzerland, on May 27, 1918.

"The Man Who's Afraid"

HARPER S. COBB, Glendale, Calif.

There's a man you meet in your everyday life,
His kind seem to be everywhere.
He's the man who is shiftless and idle,
Nor does he pretend to care.

Perhaps he once had fine ambitions,
Of happiness, wealth and fame.
But this man was only a dreamer;
"The man who's afraid" is his name.

Afraid of honest and steady labor,
Afraid to face life full and square.
Of the fortunes that others worked for,
He seems to wonder where's his share.

He's afraid of lofty ambitions,
Afraid of losing what little he has made.
Time never lingers, fortune never waits,
For the man who is always afraid.

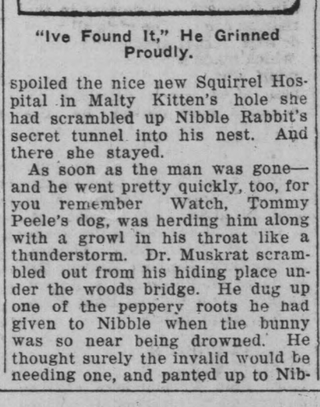
EVERY BUG SLEEPS BEST IN ITS OWN COCOON

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Down at Dr. Muskrat's Pond! I s'pose you 've been wondering what happened there all this time I've been telling you about the red dog. How about the wounded widow of Chatter Squirrel? Well, by the time that very dog and the wicked hunter who owned it had spoiled the nice new Squirrel Hospital in Malty Kitten's hole she had scrambled up Nibble Rabbit's secret tunnel into his nest. And there she stayed.



"Ive Found It," He Grinned Proudly.

As soon as the man was gone—and he went pretty quickly, too, for you remember Watch, Tommy Peele's dog, was herding him along with a growl in his throat like a thunderstorm. Dr. Muskrat scrambled out from his hiding place under the woods bridge. He dug up one of the peppery roots he had given to Nibble when the bunny was so near being drowned. He thought surely the invalid would be needing one, and panted up to Nibble's front door, saying throu the corners of his mouth, "I'm c ing, folks. I'm coming."

Bless you, there was the wid showing off her lame foot! hurts some yet," she had to o "but I can move it again. I m surely can. In another day I'll able to climb. Not that I mind ing in the nice clean earth," hurried to add, for fear she'd h the rabbits' feelings, "but I f safer in a nice, tall tree; it is much harder to find me there."

"'Every bug sleeps best in own cocoon,' as Stripes Sku says," laughed Nibble good nat edly. "By then we'll have fou Chatter's own treasure in Ch ter's own hole. You'll be sn there as your tongue behind yo teeth until you're a well squirre

But they hadn't—found the tre ure, I mean. Not by sun-up n morning. It was way along in t afternoon (just about the ti school had let out) that Strip son, Thunderpaws, came up w his tail in the air. "I've found it he grinned proudly, "It's in earth hole. I caught a mouse co ing out of it, with a nut she w trying to steal."

"Has it leaves all over it?" as ed the widow. You know Chatt said he was tired of carryi leaves to cover it up. That w one of the Woodsfolk's clues.

"Plenty of leaves," answer Thunderpaws. Which was perfe ly true. But they were leaves th had fallen from the tree overhea

The widow thought to herself would be a very funny place f Chatter to choose. But she did want to say so when all the Woo folk were taking so much troub for her. So she started to fi out if it were really true.

ISTMAS DOLLS TUESDAY CLUB

e fortunate children of mem- of the Tuesday Afternoon were special guests at this 's meeting of the organiza- when "Christmas Dolls," a ming little playlet by Louise Armstrong, was given for entertainment by members he dramatic section. It was work, as much enjoyed by adults as by the little folk, and as also the christening of a tiful new velvet stage curtain, gift of the dramatic and other ions, which was presented to club at the close of the per- ance by Mrs. Raymond Chase. he first act of the little drama esented the night before stmas, when the little girl for m the stockings were hung the toys assembled (who was rsonated very well indeed by J. Roger Bentley), was sent ed after again hearing the tation of "The Night Before stmas" by her mother, Mrs. rles H. Temple. In the inter- before the mother and the d (Mrs. Ray Galvin) return rrange the toys, Santa Claus es in and fills the stockings. boxes containing the seven are opened and Annie, the d, proposes to throw away the doll, "Genevieve," the most ished treasure of the little but "Mother," knowing the er heart of her child, insists Genevieve be permitted to ive until the morrow, and so is deposited in the waste et.

he second scene represents the s in conference and their cruel diation of poor Genevieve as nd the pale of any decent ciation. In this scene Gene- e is personated by Mrs. W. L. rews; the harlequin doll is Colin Cable; baby doll (with buttons and buttonholes), Raymond Chase; fashionable doll, Mrs. F. G. Abbey; peas- doll, Mrs. Harry Lockwood; ier doll, Mrs. W. F. Nash, Jr.; ie Antoinette doll, Mrs. Chas. Meadows; Japanese doll, Mrs. rt Pearce.

was a very convincing presen- on and after poor Genevieve been hustled into the waste et again despite her protests, ning comes, the little girl is rd wakening, and each doll rries back to her box.

the third scene the little girl es in to find the stockings ta has left by the fire, the istmas tree centering the table around it the seven beautiful dolls, each of which is ad- ed and laid aside while she ts for Genevieve, indignantly ues her from the waste basket , stripping the clothes from erstwhile scornful fashionable , transfers them to Genevieve a sigh of content in the ex- nge, which mother appreciates which exasperates to the limit ie, the maid.

is light and airy, as a Christ- play should be, but with room the clever work done by the scientious members of this wing section of the club, or ch the audience showed its reciation by frequent applause. he music which preceded the play and which filled the intervals between acts, was exceptionally fine and consisted of Christmas carols sung by the Nevin quartet, composed of Mrs. Charles A. Parker, Mrs. A. M. Draper, Mrs. John D. Cole and Mrs. Frank Arnold.

The clubhouse was decorated with poinsettias and was more than filled, many having to stand throughout the performance, even after chairs had been placed in the aisles.

In the absent of the president, Mrs. Charles H. Hutchinson, who was kept from coming by the serious illness of an aunt, Mrs. A. M. Williams, vice-president, presided.

SHOWER WAS GIVEN ELDER AND MRS. NEFF

Once there was a preacher who, after serving an unresponsive congregation six years, decided to accept a position as chaplain in a penitentiary. In his closing address to his ungrateful flock, he stated that one reason for his departure was that they did not love him because all they had given him in those six years was wormy apples and moldy fruit.

There was a shower on Elder and Mrs. E. L. Neff at the Harrower laboratory last evening, December 27—not a shower of good old rainwater or wormy apples and moldy fruit—but of the best canned and preserved vegetables and fruits, a handsome linen tablecloth and napkins and a dinner set. Mrs. Neff received the last drops of the shower, which were substantial coin of the realm.

Elder Neff is the pastor of the Seventh-day Adventist church and has served his 600 members for more than a year—and served them faithfully and well. He and Mrs. Neff were really "honest Injun" surprised. They walked into the assembly room of the laboratory totally disarmed, modestly seeking a comfortable seat before the entertainment began. (Dr. Harrower had sent them a special, but not too special an invitation to be present at a little program in the assembly room of the laboratory). The assembly arose and applauded. We couldn't see Mrs. Neff's face, but we could see Elder Neff, and he blushed clear to the top of his head.

After they were safely seated Dr. Harrower explained to the surprised guests the purpose of the evening's assembly and J. H. Ford as spokesman for the congregation, expressed to the pastor and his wife the sincere appreciation of the congregation for their devoted services and voiced the hope that they would remain with the church for a long time to come. Elders J. O. Corliss and R. W. Munson presented the gifts and then Elder and Mrs. Neff thanked their friends for their thoughtfulness and expressions of regard.

An interesting musical and literary program was rendered. Mrs. Schaffner entertained the assembly with an exceptionally well-rendered piano selection and Mrs. Henry R. Harrower gave an appropriate and amusing reading, "When the Minister Calls." Prof. Max Hill, principal of the Glendale Academy, told us how Virginia met Kansas and came to California. Elder Neff is a native of the Old Dominion state, and Mrs. Neff of the Sunflower state.

After a social time of handshaking and visiting, parties were escorted through the administration building and the laboratory, and were given the opportunity of seeing some of the interesting machinery in the laboratory at work.

House decorations were carried out in greenery and flowers in the Christmas colors. The girls all wore their high school graduation dresses, which made a pretty scene. The evening was spent in playing Bunko, after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The guests for the evening included Miss Millicent Alvord, Miss Judd's roommate at Pomona, the Misses Edith and Lois Schuyler, Miss Margaret Frazee, Miss Louise Wimmer, Miss Garnet Peters, Miss Mira Johns and the honor guest, Miss Grace Judd. BUSINESS WOMEN SOCIAL SESSION

More than 30 members of the Business and Professional Women's club assembled Tuesday evening in the beautiful new banquet hall of the chamber of commerce for an informal social evening devoted to visiting, playing progressive games, with a few greatly enjoyed piano solos by Miss Sohmer and Mrs. Edith Gregg, who rejoiced in the opportunity to test the splendid instrument the chamber has just purchased.

A short business session was held at which tentative plans were announced for the club banquet to be given at the Chamber of Commerce January 24, which all the business women of the city will be privileged to attend as paying guests. Vocational guidance will be the chief theme of after-dinner speeches on that occasion.

Preliminary to the party proper, meetings of the rest room and social committees were held and at the close of the evening refreshments of ice cream and wafers were served.

There was a good attendance at this meeting and everyone was enthusiastic over the Christmas work. Arrangements were made for the installation of officers to take place the second Friday in January. The installation meeting will be an all-day one and luncheon will be served at noon.

The Presbyterian church was well filled for the Christmas entertainment Tuesday night. The exercises, as arranged by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Mottern, depicting the suffering in Bible lands. Following this showing a collection was taken which yielded approximately $200 for the Near East relief.

LEONE SHATTUCK HOSTESS AT PARTY

Miss Leone Shattuck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Shattuck, was hostess at a pleasant Christmas party at which a few intimate friends were entertained Saturday evening at her home, 114 West Broadway. The apartment was beautifully decorated in the Christmas colors, a Christmas tree centering the dining table whereon were gifts for all the guests. When unwrapped they were found to contain a slip headed with the names Leone M. Shattuck and Emil O. Kieger, followed by the following verse:

You wonder about the wedding date,
We're very sure you do,
It's January 22nd,
In nineteen twenty-two.

The evening was devoted to guessing games, music and general sociability in the way of congratulations of the happy pair.

Mr. Kiefer is a member of the firm of Pulliam & Kiefer, and Miss Shattuck is a popular member of the staff at the Glendale Public Library on Harvard street. She and her fiance have known each other for some years, their acquaintance ripening into love during the world war which took Mr. Kiefer overseas.

VOTE FOR THE HIGH SCHOOL SITE AT THE CITY PARK AND SWIMMING POOL—VOTE FOR THE GREY SITE.—Adv.

EDITORIALS
By The People

"Editor Glendale Press:—As the chief argument of the advocates of the Lukens site is: 'Eagle Rock, La Crescenta and Tujunga are in the district and therefore must be considered,' I would ask them: If these communities mentioned were not in the high school district, would they dare ask Glendale to locate its new high school within 600 feet of Eagle Rock and four and one-half miles east of the west line of Glendale? If not, why, then, should a small minority fix our high school site?

"There is another vital matter that must not be forgotten in connection with the Lukens site, and this is: The south line of that site stops 150 feet short of Colorado boulevard, extending for a distance of 550 feet east of Verdugo road. In other words, there is a strip between the Lukens site and Colorado boulevard 150 feet wide and running east from Verdugo road 550 feet, and worst of all, there is an oil station and several old buildings on it. Now, does the board expect to buy this later? And if so, do they hold an option on it, and at what price? There has been some talk of its being held at $55,000. Does anyone doubt for a minute that, if it is not tied up, and the Lukens site is voted, the price will double over night—and our site will cost us twice $77,500, which additional sum would be sufficient to build one unit of the school on the Grey site, and thus relieve the taxpayers of this additional burden?

"The above, as I see them, are matters that should cause us to hesitate long before taking that plunge.

"O. M. NEWBY,
"President Greater Glendale Improvement Association."

"Editor Glendale Press:—A keen interest in the welfare of the Glendale union high school, and civic interest as well, prompts me to do what I can for the success of the bonds in tomorrow's election.

"In 1920 I worked against the projection of the Glendale union high school on to Brand boulevard and against its definite retention in its present location. At that time I also promised to work in favor of a bond issue to secure an adequate new site where a school could be established that would be a source of pride and usefulness to the community. The time has now come when all who would see our young people have every opportunity for a first-class education, may do their share toward making such an opportunity possible.

Tomorrow, Thursday, December 29, an election is called, not only to vote bonds, but to choose a site as well.

"It is hard to conceive how any one can, under present circumstances, vote against the bonds, but let us not forget that, unfortunately, there are those who consistently vote against all bonds.

"The object of this letter is not only to help carry the bonds, but it is an effort to prevent the miscarriage of the "straw"vote and the squandering of the people's money on a proposition that would be a discredit to the community. Next to the school itself, location is paramount.

"Some two years ago, I openly proposed the Lukens site, and well remember going out alone in my car in search of a location suitable for such a school as I believed Glendale should have and I was not long in recognizing the outstanding advantages of what is now to be put on the ballot as the Lukens site. Later, I was a member of a committee that made an investigation similar to that recently made by the chamber of commerce committee of nine, and with the same result—a unanimous vote for the Lukens site. This site is located on three of the finest drives in the county—drives that are thronged with automobiles every Sunday carying visitors from all over the country. Transportation facilities are of the best. The site is high, dry and clean, and will always remain so—an ideal place for the Glendale union high school.

"Not so with the Grey site, however. It is low, flat, a sandy wash and liable to be flooded at any time. Those who do not think so are oblivious to facts or are not familiar with what has happened in years past. It is situated on the very edge of the school district and practically adjoins what is sure to become and, in fact, now is, the industrial district. It has practically no transportation facilities either present or probable.

"The tract is not visible from any street opening running west from Brand or Central and is certainly not at all in the line of auto traffic. Moreover, if, as is claimed, the wash at San Fernando road is the lowest point in Glendale, barring one slight exception, is it not possible that at some future date it might be found advisable to locate near there a sewage disposal system? This situation may never develop, but why run the risk unnecessarily of placing our high school in such a proximity when there is a better, a cheaper and a more centrally located site available? There is no more similarity between the two sites than there is between a dress suit and a pair of overalls. I feel that already enough of the people's money has been spent on a patch of sand we are pleased to call a city park.

"I live on the "West Side," as do, I understand, some seven of the chamber of commerce committee, but I, like them, am for the Lukens site on the "East Side" simply because it is the best on every count.

"Yours for the bonds and the Lukens site.

"H. M. BUTTS."

Editor Glendale Press:—Which? Gray's or Lukens? West or East? Some facts for voters.

The west site is the worst in Glendale. It is about one-third of a mile or 1760 feet east of the corner of Doran and San Fernando streets and the steam railroad. This corner is 300 feet from the wash, northwest. The wash is 90 feet wide here and about ten feet deep. From this point going northeast to the bridge over the wash at Pacific avenue it is over a mile. From the bottom of this bridge down to the bottom of the wash is ten feet. The bridge across the wash at Central avenue is over 80 rods east. The width of the Pacific avenue bridge is 5 rods. Seven rods north of this bridge, runs the Burbank car line. About 40 rods north of this point is a ravine 30 to 40 feet deep; it runs southwest along the wash to the San Fernando road over a mile.

From the corner of San Fernando road, going east on Doran street to Gray's house, is over one-third of a mile. From this point east to Kenilworth street is 952 feet; thence north to Patterson lane is 826 feet. This includes 17 acres—not 20, as has been said. Patterson lane is the north line of the High School lot and the south line of the Pseudo park, the south end of which is 2 rods from the south side of the wash, which is about 5 rods wide at this point. The park contains about 8 acres—not 10, as alleged. It is worth not over $1000. Instead of $10,000 as charged. About one half the so-ealled park is always flooded in a big rain, and is, by it, changed into a swamp, turning it into a breeding place for rats, mice, gophers and mosquitos, malaria, and perhaps yellow fever, all within gunshot of the proposed high school. Patterson lane is the north line of the proposed school grounds and the south line of the Pseudo park is 12 rods from the west end of the park, at the south side of the wash, which is about 6 rods wide at that point.

Patterson lane is 20 to 25 feet lower than Doran street on the south side of the proposed high school area. That gives a fine chance for expensive grading, in building any kind of structures.

These two sites, if the splendid city of Glendale is foolish enough to vote for it, will be fine for gopher or rat holes, in which to pour water or taxes, to line the pockets of the gang of jobbing, camouflaging realtors, who are so zealous for the job. If you doubt it, be sure and go see it.

But do not look through the eyes, wishes, imaginations, and false prophecies of the West Sider, whose selfish predictions can never be matured in their swamp. All of which is not fit place for building any kind of structures for school work purposes.

It is very unfortunate that our city officers should have made such a mistake as they were led to, in locating the proposed park as they did. It is hoped that it is not too late to repent and correct the mistake.

REV. A. B. SMART.

Editor Glendale Press: I hope that you will editorially urge a record vote in favor of the high school bonds tomorrow. No circumstances, personal or otherwise, should permit this matter to be held over for a long period of years. I hope that every registered voter in Glendale will vote "yes" on the bonds.

In regard to the selection of the site I have little to add to what has already been splendidly outlined in your columns and elsewhere. I have been a bit concerned about the price and have dug up some figures—they do not seem to have been very strenuously emphasized in the comparison—which I may pass on through you to your readers.

The Grey tract on Doran is said to contain 20 acres—I am informed that the footage is 952 from Chester to Kenilworth, and 826 from Doran to Patterson—just a little over 18 acres. At all events, let us say 20 acres as these figures have been mentioned several times. From that we must deduct three-fourths of an acre reserved for the Grey homesite; .84 of an acre, which the city engineer assures me will be necessary to accommodate the street work on three sides. This leaves 18.4 acres. The price is $75,000 and the city engineer assures me that the street work will cost $12,500—a total of $87,500. This amounts, approximately, to $4,750 an acre and I think it is very expensive land.

On the other hand, the Lukens site embraces 21½ acres and no deduction need be made for streets although the sidewalks will have to be put in. The price is $77,500 and the city engineer states it will cost $4,600 for the improvements—making a total of $82,100, or at the rate of approximately $3,820 per acre.

I really think that the voters should have respect to the pocketbooks of the people in this matter as well as consider the relative merits of the sites from the geographic, transportation, climatologic and other standpoints.

Mr. Grey wants $4,750 an acre. Messrs. Lukens and McOmber want $930 an acre less. Do you think that I will be perfectly reasonable in voting for the Lukens site at a saving of so much money?

Henry R. Harrower, M. D.
December 28, 1921.

Editor Glendale Press:—The executive board of the Glendale Welfare Council wishes to convey its thanks to the following organizations as well as private individuals for their generous and hearty co-operation in its Christmas activities; various Masonic bodies, the city schools, Troop No. 2 Boy Scouts, under the leadership of Benjamin Robison, Jr., for donations of clothing and money; boys of the Hi Y under the leadership of G. Edwin Murphy; the Girls' League of Glendale Union High School under the presidency of Doris Packer, which gave hundreds of pieces of clothing, toys, and foodstuffs, all beautifully wrapped. Because of this co-operation the Council was able to spread its Christmas cheer further than ever before. Thirty-four Glendale families representing not less than fifty children, were remembered with clothing, toys and good things to eat.

MRS. E. D. YARD, President.

Editor Glendale Press:—Would you kindly publish the following as an open letter to the good citizens of Glendale?

To the citizens of Glendale:

For years Eagle Rock City along with other sections has been happy to be associated with Glendale in the Union High School district. Though Burbank has her own high school yet the citizens of Eagle Rock have preferred to pay taxes into the union fund to ensure a higher class institution of which we might all be proud. Though Eagle Rock City's assessed valuation is $2,312,085, a larger ration than the number of pupils we have in the high school, we have been glad to pool our interests in a finely equipped school of a polytechnic nature.

We have not complained about the present site of the high school. But now that a new site is being selected about a mile west or a mile east for a permanent location we feel that all Glendale citizens can easily see the situation in which we are placed.

The Lukens site on East Broadway we judge is as accessible and fully as desirable a site for Glendale people as is the Grey site over near San Fernando road.

We are willing to share in the bonds; we are willing to support the new and greater institution; we desire to continue to co-operate with you in the cause of higher education, but removing our Union High School to a point a mile nearer Burbank which already has a high school, and a mile further from us, who have no such school except our union institution, would be an act that our citizens could not help but keenly feel.

Sincerely,
W. L. MILLER, President,
C. L. SUITS, Secretary,
Eagle Rock City Chamber of Commerce.

VANITY SHOPPE OPENED HERE

Glendale women who believe it is a duty to be beautiful, and this cult has a large and influential following here, will rejoice in the announcement that Josephine E. Nye, an experienced beauty culturist who operated a shop in the East and who has had headquarters at the Alexandria and Maryland hotels since she came to California, has opened "La Vanity Shoppe" at 108 West Broadway. The beauty of Glendale maids and matrons has probably had something to do with the phenomenal growth of the city, so let the good work go on and may La Vanity Shoppe and all its rivals flourish.

A railway brakeman was passing down his train after it had come to a standstill at a country station, shouting out the name of the place as he went:

"March! March!" he yelled. And then did funny things with a lamp and a flag.

Suddenly one of the windows was lowered, and, to the brakeman's great surprise, an excited passenger cried out: "Good heavens! It was February when I left!"

ONE'S THOUGHTS naturally turn to Calendars as New Year's Greetings, don't they? But had you thought of having GLENN R. DOLBERG of 206½ West Broadway photograph the kiddies in a characteristic little pose, that you might mount the picture with the calendar? That's a remembrance particularly appropriate at this season—and always appreciated by dear friends or the "folks back home." I am sure that you will be more than pleased with the results if Mr. Dolberg is the photographer!

TO PRESENT A YOUTHFUL appearance e'en long after youth has passed, is the secret desire of every woman's heart! And, no doubt, you've often wished you might learn the secret of some of your friends' youthful appearance—well, here it is! Mask O' Yuth supplies them the method whereby a beautiful freshness of color and a look and feeling of youth's firmness occurs! Mrs. Billig of the BROADWAY BEAUTY PARLOR, 214 East Broadway, carries the Mask O' Yuth preparations—and she has given more than one woman that certain charm and beauty which can be achieved only with a youthful appearance! Mask O' Yuth is the modern scientific method or non-massage—and a preparation which will be well worth your while to look into. Rice and Cream

Six tablespoons of rice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup whipping cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla, preserved or candied cherries.

Simmer rice in milk till tender. Add salt and sugar when rice is about half cooked. If milk is not all absorbed drain rice in a sieve. Let cool. Whip cream till stiff. Fold in rice and add two tablespoons syrup from the cherries if preserved fruit is used. Serve in sherbet glasses and garnish with strip of cherry.

"MAY THIS COMING NEW YEAR bring to you its bounty of health, happiness and success!" So runs the greeting which Mr. Fisher of FISHER'S VARIETY STORE, 212 East Broadway, is sending broadcast to his many friends and patrons in and about Glendale! It is a message of good will—expressing in its one sentence the warm friendship and sincere well-wishing which characterizes Mr. Fisher and his store. And, do you know, that's why I always find it such a pleasure to shop at Fisher's Variety Store, for there one is treated with such courtesy and friendliness that shopping no longer remains a bore and a task to be endured—but a joy—a delight to be looked forward to!

CHRISTMAS IS O'ER—and although in many instances the embers of the Yule-log are still burning, most folks have sort of settled down after the hustle and bustle of the holiday season—with just packs of resolutions for the coming year. The merchants of Glendale are closing a twelve month of successful service—a period during which they've endeavored to give to you—the people of Glendale—the very best merchandise for the minimum prices. They are in Glendale to serve you—to secure for you the finest quality of goods at the closest margins—and to in turn sell them to you at prices you can easily afford to pay. It is your duty to pledge to them your sincere help and support during the year 1922—for you owe it to at least give them the opportunity of showing you their goods before buying in nearby cities! In these columns today I'm telling you of some of the instances of low prices which I've found in my journeyings about town—incidents which I'm sure will interest you!

Truths in Epigram

For himself does a man work evil in working evils for another. — Hesiod (720 B. C.).

There never was a good war or a bad peace. — Franklin (1706-1790).

Let us consider the reason of the case. For nothing is law that is not reason.— Powell (—— 1713).

A GIFT TO THE WORLD

President Harding says that the conference is making the "greatest contribution to peace and good will that has ever marked the Christmas time in all the Christian era."

This sweeping statement may not be too sweeping nor too strong. Peace is the greatest boon the world could ask. With peace prevailing throughout the world, the fear of war removed, there would be the dawn of so brilliant a prosperity that the human mind hardly may conceive of the splendors of that day.

To bring about peace is the one purpose of the conference. This is being done by adjusting disputes, making concessions, arriving at a basis of justice as the rule of national conduct.

The folly of war is plain enough to a world still mourning the brave who died in battle. A great burden of debt rests upon the nations. This debt is the reminder of war, that greatest and most malign of human follies.

There is reason to believe that the conference will create a vast area of peace. Such an area might spread to embrace the people of all races. Even if nothing should be accomplished just at this time, but an amicable understanding among a group of the most powerful nations, that in itself would justify the high praise uttered by the President.

MONKEY GLANDS

Naturally there was a purpose behind the advertising given the grafting of monkey or goat glands upon human tissue. The claims made in behalf of the process were manifestly absurd. The monkey is not a hardy creature. It dies under moderate hardship. Yet a gland from a monkey was to cause longevity, the return of youth, and set the old bones of humanity capering with the agility of a skeleton on a string.

Naturally men, even desirous of defying the laws of nature, hesitated to make ridiculous display of themselves. The chaps who, to the accompaniment of banners and brass bands, submitted to the operation, doubtless profited, but financially rather than physically.

When interest had been aroused, ther followed an announcement that the rejuvenating glands could be obtained in the form of pellet or potion. Thus the old man balanced precariously on the edge of life, might take his saving dosage in private, and come prancing back to juvenility, tossing aside his crutch and planning for the future as though there need be no end to the human span.

Well, everybody is aware that one is born every minute.

CURIOUS MOTIVES

A recent robbery that developed into double murder in Los Angeles was inspired, it is asserted, by one man who said he wanted to get Christmas gifts for his children. Later he expressed a willingness to confess. The only stipulation was that in case of his being hanged his family should get the benefit of his life insurance.

In New York a desperate criminal killed a man and woman. When arrested he explained that he desired to buy a Christmas present for his mother.

Probably the truth about both of these cases will be found to be different from the allegation of the prisoners. When a man through laziness, or addiction to vice, drifts into the underworld, finding there the activities that are pleasing to him, and the associations that meet his desire, he never lacks excuse.

When an individual declares that love for his mother impelled him to kill the innocent mother of some one else, he proved his peryerted mentality. He is not making a defense that entitles him to any consideration.

The criminal is the most selfish of living persons. It is love of self generally that directs him. He has no real love for others. The motives given in the two instances, would be curious indeed, were they real instead of sham.

VOLIVA GOES TOO FAR

Voliva, the resonant and empty head of a crank colony somewhere in Illinois, has gone too far. He says there is no Santa Claus.

When, from the same vacuous entity, there came forth recently the solemn statement that the world is flat, people could afford to smile. Anybody capable, in the light of human knowledge, of believing such an assertion, is of no particular consequence. Let him think the moon is made of green cheese, and the great world will care nothing about it. When he attacks Santa Claus he makes enemies of millions. People are patient and will bear much, but an assault on Santa Claus is different. It is recognized as outrageous, a blow to sentiment, an affront to charity; an effort to chill the human heart, beating so warmly at the holiday season.

That the ancient Santa Claus, driving his reindeer, is not a visible individual will be freely admitted. He represents a spirit so vital that at each recurring Christmas, almost is it materialized. It is the spirit of kindness. It stirs the emotions deeply. It draws the feet into paths leading to the abode of want. It causes the poor to be sought out, and welcome gifts to be thrust into their waiting hands.

The trouble with the Voliva type is in lack of imagination and sympathy. Endowed but feebly in the matter of intelligence, equipped with but rudimentary souls, they are to be pitied. At the same time it is necessary to rebuke them, tell them to get out of the way; to "go chase themselves."

Voliva lives in a world to which he does not belong. He is an alien and non-assimilable element. He is a blatant nuisance.

No Santa Claus? Oh shut up!

DESERVING OF HONORS

When Brand Whitlock, ambassador to Belgium, retired recently, he was called upon by King Albert. For more than two hours the visitors remained talking over with the American the stirring and dreadful times through which they had passed together.

There is a tendency to speak lightly of the American diplomatic service. Doubtless many who have been permitted to enter it have been unworthy. The distinction has been conferred in payment of political debts. The posts have been filled by the ignorant and the unfit. In these respects no administration, at least of the last half century, has been free of reproach. Cultured Americans traveling abroad have been humiliated to find the interests of their country represented by men wholly without standing at home; often shunted to a distant point as a method of getting rid of them.

To this standard of worse than mediocrity, Brand Whitlock proved to be a brilliant exception. He was in Belgium at the outbreak of the war, and continued there through all the trying period when the valiant little nation, striving to beat back the invading Hun, stood between European civilization and the destruction that threatened it. In that emergency Whitlock arose to the occasion with a manly courage, a vigor, and yet with such nicety of perception touching his official duties, that Americans gloried in his conduct. His bravery and his aplomb excited the admiration of the world.

Such a man as Whitlock, once engaged in public service of this character, should have been retained as long as he desired. No man could be named to succeed him whose presence would be so grateful to the Belgian themselves, nor more satisfactory to Americans.

Men with cheerful dispositions are more inclined to borrow money than trouble.

Fortunately a mother never knows just what the neighbors think of her children.

PUZZLEHEAD SABRE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I have no doubt that the year 1921 will be known to the next generation as the year when Mark Sabre was born.

I should not be surprised if future school children learned to fix the date of the Disarmament Conference as the same year Mark Sabre came to our midst.

Mark Sabre is the hero of the novel, "If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.

This is the first of Hutchinson's books I ever read. For I confess that it is not the sort of looking book that I like. Skimming through it, it seems to be one of those endless analyses of character. Such books usually interest me not, because as a rule the character is not worth analyzing.

But I started "If Winter Comes" and was unable to lay it down till I had finished. And when I had finished,

"Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken."

For Mark Sabre had merged, taken life and shape, and is going to be as real to me as long as I live as any man I have known in the flesh.

For there are two sorts of inhabitants in this world: (1) Book People; (2) Flesh People.

The second kind is a more or less developed animal; the first is a pure spiritual creation.

For instance, these people just as really inhabit the earth as President Harding or Jack Dempsey; these people—Pantagruel, Don Quixote, Wilhelm Meister, Jean Valjean, Micawber, Little Lord Fauntleroy, Becky Sharp, and Uriah Heep.

These are the true immortals that walk among us. And I have a strong suspicion that Mark Sabre belongs to the company.

They called him "Puzzlehead" because he had a habit, even when he was a boy at school, of "screwing up his forehead over things that others condemned, and saying, 'Yes, but I see what he means.'"

In other words, he had the fatal gift of comprehension.

His life shows the tragedy of understanding.

These words of his own express the point.

"You can't possible be successful if you haven't got convictions—what I call bald-headed convictions. That is what success is, Nona, the success of politicians and big ones whose names are always in the papers. It's that: Seeing a thing from only one point of view. Not mucking about all round a thing and seeing it from 20 different sides, like I do. You can't possibly pull this big booming sort of stuff they call success if you are going to see anybody's point of view but your own. You must have convictions. Yes, and narrower than that—not convictions but conviction. Only one conviction—that you are right and every one who thinks differently from you is wrong to blazes. And I am dished if I ever think I am right, let alone conviction of it. I can always see the bits of right on the other side of the argument. That's me. Dash me!"

That is the sort of man into whose nostrils is breathed the breath of life and he becomes a living soul in "If Winter Comes."

My hat is off to writer Hutchinson!

THE LISTENING POST

Stevenson, or somebody or other, says that no man is useless while he has a friend.

And whoever said it, it was a good thing to say.

But we might paraphrase it, and say that no man is useless while he IS a friend.

For it is good to have a friend.

But it is better to BE one.

* * *

Because if you ARE one you will have one.

And not one but many.

For, as somebody else or other says, the way to have friends is to BE one.

And it is well to BE one, irrespective of whether being one will gain you anything from without.

For surely it will gain you something from within.

* * *

The glory of BEING something in this world is greater than the glory of HAVING something.

Because when you ARE something you HAVE the greatest thing on earth.

Which is spiritual quality.

And there is no possession greater than that.

* * *

But we were not thinking especially of the matter of friendship just now.

We were thinking of New Year and the matter of purpose.

And ideals and usefulness and all of that.

And if no man is useless while he has a friend, surely no man is useless while he has a dream.

An ideal.

Something of sweetness and light to look upward and forward to.

For ideals are things of sweetness and light.

There are no low ideals.

There are low standards.

There are low desires and wishes and appetites.

But not low ideals.

For ideals in themselves are high things.

Higher things than we are.

* * *

They are things we aspire to do.

Things we hold in our minds as sacred things to be attained.

Things we struggle upward to.

And we cannot struggle upward to a low thing.

* * *

We may stagger downward to a low thing but we cannot struggle upward to it.

And so ideals are the becon lights of aspiration that are set along the shores of the sea of life.

To keep us constant in our journeyings.

For the waves may buffet us and beat us and change the course we have set, but we may steer straight and true again.

And hold to the wheel, even after we have for the time being lost our grip of it.

* * *

The most pitiful thing in the world is the loss of ideals.

Not the temporary losing of direction.

Not the shifting and changing of our course in wind and storm and wave.

For we may find the course again.

If the beacon light burn along the shore.

But the loss of ideals means that the beacon fires have gone out.

There is no course set for us.

We drift altogether.

At the mercy of wind and wave.

* * *

So at the New Year especialy we should stand fast for our ideals.

Look along the shore for the beacon lights we have set.

Refresh and restore our spirits with new resolves.

Blessed is he who has ideals.

And who resolves to stand fast.

And who battles with wind and wave and storm, but struggles always to hold his course true.

Or, if he is swept out of his course, to find it again.

And steer it manfully and courageously.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Shadow—By Ben Jonson (1573-1637)

Follow a shadow, it still flies you;
Seem to fly it, it will pursue;
So court a mistress, she denies you;
Let her alone, she will court you.
Say, are not women truly, then,
Styled but the shadows of us men?

At morn and even, shades are longest;
At noon they are or short or none:
So men at weakest, they are strongest,
But grant us perfect, they're not known.
Say, are not women truly, then,
Styled but the shadows of us men?

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WHAT MEN FORGET

[Brockton Times].

A speaker at a recent conference of all Friends is quoted as saying: "As nations and individuals we have been thinking too much of possessions and power, too little of service and mutual helpfulness. The one thing that maters in our whole social structure is human personality, yet often we lose this essential fact in abstraction. We speak of a nation as 'the enemy,' we talk of a group as 'labor' or 'capital,' and we forget the men and women who make up the group who are the only realities there, each of them different, yet each of them bearing the impress of the Divine and capable of a new birth into a new social order." These are simple yet noble words, which would work wonders if understood, believed and practised in the hearts and lives of all mankind.

INTERPRETING AS AN ART

[Chicago News]

M. Camerlynck, the French interpreter at the arms conference at Washington, seems to be a real exponent of the fine art of translating. He has a good equipment, linguistic acrobatic and intellectual, and he uses all he has, cutting loose "with hands and feet," as Cicero put it.

In fact, M. Camerlynck represents the best Latin trandition. He translates Mr. Balfour into gestures for M. Briand and transposes M. Briand into words for Mr. Balfour. In each case, excluding the unessential, he supplies exactly what is necessary to "put across" the soul of the speaker, or as much of that soul as the speaker desires to release. Letting the whole soul out of the bag at a convention of diplomats would be as indiscreet as letting the cat out of the bag at a conference of mice.

Translating the soul of a speaker or a writer is a delicate art not much understood or esteemed in this country. That is why foreign literatures transplant so poorly to American soil. The word "translation" is much abused—how much may be illustrated by an American critic who has just published a "translation" of the declaration of indepence into "American."

By this "American" this critic means the language of the streets. The declaration of independence was a product of master builders of speech in a lofty mood. The little stunt of turning it into Lardnerese is no more translation than putting "Ain't We Got Fun?" into ecclesiastical Latin. The soul of the thing does not come across.

AGAINST CENSORSHIP

[Worcester Telegram]

That "the motor pictures the reformers approve for the young do not attract," is the statement of the opponents to state motion picture censorship contained in their argument filed with the secretary of state in connection with the referendum on the measure. The statement may not appear at first glance to be specially significant, but it is in reality the whole case against the act. Motion pictures, to bring any profit to those in the business or to do any good to those who see them, must be entertaining, and after considering what reformers have called "immoral," the fear that films under state censorship would soon become too dull for enjoyment seems well grounded.

As Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler said the other day, "no inconsiderable part of the community now lives by regulating the habits and activities of the vast majority." There is every indication that the present-day passion for regulating, if applied to motion pictures, would go to foolish extremes and deprive the citizens of much innocent pleasure and profit.

Just because a person wants a thing is no reason why he should have it. Neither is the fact that a picture might suggest evil thoughts to a few individuals sufficient reason for withholding it from the great majority of persons who would get only innocent pleasure from it.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

We're coming very close to the time of fresh beginnings. For some reason the first of the year seems to most of us a time when we can take stock of ourselves and our lives, check up the debit and credit and begin over. It's a time for research, for remembrance, for honesty.

For without the last research and remembrance are useless. Impressions on heart or mind count for very little if we do not take them into real life, transmute them into definite action. Puting aside the claim of truth does not eliminate it. Sooner or later it will come to the front again, to convict or condemn if evil. It is unescapable.

Just suppose that in this new year that is so near at hand all our business men should face the exact truth concerning their relations to employes and the whole economic situation. Just suppose that every employe should determine that through its months there should be absolute acceptance of the Golden Rule in their relations to the business for which they work. Just suppose that we all should make up our minds that truth, not sophistries, should rule our conduct, that we shall realy be, instead of merely seeming to be.

How different this year would be from this one nearing its end! How the policies of our statesmen would change! How the family relationships of some of us would alter! How differently we would talk, reason, argue! How much of peace on earth, good-will to men might actually be brought about!

But it's utterly foolish and Utopian to even suggest such a procedure. Possibly. But just think about it for a minute.

Of course the theory is that all these millions feet going across the Pacific are to be made in airships. Such an explanation involves the beli that Japan proposes to devote all its energies to ma ing airships. It will close down the industries ord narily engaged in manufacture, in order that it m have airships, not by the dozen or even by the hu dred, but in swarms and flocks.

The universal sky is to be darkened by airshi bearing the bombs that are to make Asia triumpha by the simple and easy process of blowing other peoples off the face the earth.

After this has been accomplished the valiant warriors of the s may break their airplanes into pencil length and get down to busine again.

If there is produced here a commodity that any other people desi to such degree as to be willing to pay for it, let 'em have it.

Sentiment is a fine thing. The scare over the shipment of lumb to Japan is not due to sentiment.

According to a judge in Massachusetts, a wife has full right search her husband's pocket, and to extract therefrom such financi comfort as she may be able to drag from concealment.

If there is any male inclined to demur, he must assume the r sponsibility. It will be a personal matter. He will be in contempt court, of course, which will be a mere incident, but he will be in co tempt of his marital partner, a condition rising to the proportions tragedy.

In a properly managed household the wife would have no occ sion to search pockets unless in quest of a possible hold to men She would know how much had been there, exactly what ought be her share, and have the amount neatly tucked away.

When a wife has to ransack the trousers in order to get the ca she needs, she ought to take more than he needs provided she can g her hands on it. Thus would the old man be disciplined, and "ge tled," as they say of a once bad horse that has been reformed.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Her name was Ellen. Her eyes were blue and her hair was golde and her lips red and her eyebrows black. She was as nearly like th girl you see on the front cover of the magazine as it is possible for more human girl to be. She had some sense, too. Not too much sens but some. I loved her dearly.

"I'll never forget you," she sobbed when I went away.

That did not keep her from getting married just seven months fro the day I kissed her good-by. For years I felt that my life was blighte That is, I felt that way when I remembered her. Even yet when thin do not go right at home and the Missus has one of her far-famed spel of temper and the cook brings the steak in looking like a well-weathere shingle I feel again that my life was blighted when Ellen turned m down.

The Missus has been a perfectly corking wife. But she has h little faults and there's no use denying them, whereas Ellen, as I remem ber her, had no faults at all. She is as sweet tempered in my memor as she was in reality. Her waist is as supple and her voice as kin There are nights when I sit by the fire and think of Ellen and grow pos tively sobby.

"It might have been," I say to myself. "It might have been." An I snap at the Missus and pike off to bed in a terrible temper.

For twenty years the vision of that dear girl was my secret consola tion. She was my first love. At least, she was practically my firs love. I loved her longer than I did any of my other first loves an more dearly than any of them. She was bright and beautiful to the eye of my memory.

I wish I hadn't seen her the other day. I'm not snobbish, but wasn't particularly tickled when a fat old lady grabbed me in a crow and began to reminisce in a cackle. Her grammar has gone to pot, too and some of the things she said were positively foolish. If she had bee a perfect stranger I would not have minded it, but she was not. Unde a pall of fat I could trace the lineaments I once loved. Her golden ha —alack, alack—it is still golden. It is even more golden than it used t be. But it is undeniably thin.

I wonder if I can summon back that old loved and lost feeling nex time I sit by the fire.

BUILD A HOME AND PAY FOR IT IN PAYMENTS LESS THAN RENT

Thousands of homeless families are paying rent today, living in unsatisfactory places, paying more than they can afford for less than they want—BECAUSE they did not buy a lot and build a home.

There is no better New Year's gift for a man to give his family than a HOME IN GLENDALE.

There is no better New Year Resolution than the resolution that you will cast your fortunes definitely with Glendale through BUYING and OWNING a piece of land within the city, which will get its share of the community's great advancement.

Success in life depends upon two things—opportunity and what is within you. There is no place on earth where OPPORTUNITY is spelled in such large letters than in Glendale.

If you have the internal elements of success, it is more nearly within your grasp here than anywhere else on the footstool.

And if you cannot succeed here, why try elsewhere?

Therefore, the thing to do is to OWN YOUR HOME.

If you have a clear lot, you can finance the building of a home upon it. If you haven't a clear lot, the way to get one is to make the largest payment you can make, and start owning it. Then finish the payments as fast as you can.

REMEMBER, Glendale is growing at the rate of about 500 people a month. Is there a lot you think you would like to have as the site of YOUR home or YOUR business?

Homes Wanted—

Eastern business men of wealth are looking for country homes in California, away from the strife and bustle of city life. Are you looking for a chance to sell your home now, or in a few years to come? Ornamental trees and shrubs, properly disposed, are a garden's chief asset. Planted now, they will become quite valuable in but a few years' time. In the meantime, you are building a real home, not merely a place where you may sleep and eat.—Los Angeles Times.

We are at your service to improve your home now. Landscape work our specialty. Come in and talk it over.

ELECTRICITY NOW BELIEVED BEST FOR ALL ROADS

Traffic Problem Can Be Solved Says Survey

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — Unified electrical operation of the railroads of the country would revolutionize transportation, effecting great economy in money and effort, in addition to the admitted advantages in convenience and comfort to the public.

This is the conclusion reached by the United States Geological Survey after an intensive investigation.

Chief among the economics effected would be that of trackage. For instance, the Survey states, the entire traffic between Philadelphia and Washington could readily be carried over the rails of the Pennsylvania system under electrical operation, leaving those of the Baltimore and Ohio for future growth.

Similarly, electric operation in the vicinity of Boston and New York would leave a margin of track capacity so great that no money need be spent for many years for further extension of track, it is shown.

The total cost 20 years hence, if electrification is begun now, the Survey states, would be less than the cost of the added track and terminal facilities necessary under steam operation to provide for the inevitable 100 per cent increase in traffic within that time.

If the operation were made electrical and unified, less men and machinery would be required. There is great waste now, the Survey holds, on account of separate reserves of motor power. Further, the steam locomotive can run but eight hours a day, while the electric locomotive can operate 20 hours.

Naturally economy of operation would result in reduction of both freight and passenger rates.

WOMAN SHERIFF TO HANG THROST

Claims She Will Spring Trap and Do Her Duty

WAUKON, Iowa, Dec. 28.—When Earl Throst, confessed slayer of Inga Magnuson, 20-year-old Dorchester school teacher, dies on the gallows March 9, 1923, a woman will spring the death trap. For Allamakee county has a woman sheriff.

"If I have to spring the trap on Throst, I'll do my duty," Mrs. Gunda Martingdale, who directed the man hunt which led to the arrest and conviction of Throst, declared.

Throst was sentenced by Judge H. E. Taylor after he had confessed he killed Miss Magnuson at her school house, December 13. Date of execution was set so far in advance, the judge indicated, so that mental experts may observe Throst's actions and determine the validity of his counsel's claims that he is "mentally unbalanced."

THE WIDOW SKINNER'S COW

The Widder Skinner's brindle cow
Got through the medder fence somehow,
And Amos Kimball's barkin' dog
Chased her down inter Tinker's bog,
And she kept sinkin' kind o' slow,
About as fur as she could go,
Until it looked as if old Boss
Was goin' to be a total loss.

And Ezry Pembroke stopped his load
Out in the middle of the road
And says: "By cracky! It looks now
As if somebody lost a cow,
I swan it does! She slipped a cog,
She did, when she got in that bog.
I wonder how that critter went
And got in that predicament!"

And there upon his load Ez set
Expressin' his profound regret
Fer Widder's cow. And Hiram Brown
Stopped also on the way to town.
And says: "I wonder how she got
Out of the Widder's medder lot!
She bellers awful sad," he says.
"I guess we'd beller, too," says Ez.

And old Tom Tipper come along
And reckoned there was somethin' wrong,
And stopped his team and turned about
And seen the cow and waded out
And says: "It ain't too late perhaps";
And took some harness chains and straps
And got a harness rigged about
The poor blame brute and snaked her out.

The world is full of folks like Hi
And Ez, who set and wonder why
Some feller gets bogged down, and set
Expressin' their profound regret.
Till some Tom Tipper comes along,
Not carin' how the chap went wrong,
And not afraid of wadin' out
To snake the poor durn feller out!

MARY PICKFORD'S GREATEST WORK

Little Lord Fauntleroy at Glendale Theater Tonight

The thing that probably interests the public most about Mary Pickford's "Little Lord Fauntleroy," at the Glendale theater, is not so much the fact that she plays a dual role in this picture as that she takes the part of a boy.

Mary has played a dual role before—in "Stella Maris"—but this will be the first time she has ever appeared as a boy throughout an entire photoplay. While it is true that she has worn masculine garb in some of her previous productions, she did so as a girl masquerading as a boy for the moment only. But in her film version of Frances Hodgson Burnett's great story, Miss Pickford is constantly on the screen as Little Lord Fauntleroy or as his mother; in fact, much of the time she is there both as the mother and the little lord, all by the aid of cleverly devised double exposure work of the cameraman, Charles Rosher.

"There are many features," says Manager Howe, "that indicate this not only is Mary Pickford's greatest photoplay but one of the most remarkable film plays ever shown. Without a doubt it is the most appealing story ever screened. It is rich in color and human interest. We see Mary depicting a Fauntleroy who is all boy despite his curls, spotless collars and handsome velvet suits. For a dressed-up boy, he certainly does get powerfully mussed up at times, much to the amusement of his stern old grandfather and to the chagrin of his idolizing mother."

TWO LION CUBS TO OAKLAND'S ZOO

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The White Star liner Olympia, from Southampton and Cherbourg, has two passengers whose names do not appear on the list. They are lion cubs being brought to the United States by H. A. Snow, curator of the Oakland, Calif., museum, who shot the lioness in British East Africa. He is presenting them to the zoological gardens connected with the museum. Snow is returning from a two-year world tour with his wife, son and daughter, who accompanied him. The latter, a seasoned traveler at the age of five, has covered 80,000 miles.

"Yes," said the friend, nodding.

"Well," said Pat, "I've just melted down a shilling and filled the hole."

CHARLIE RAY AT T.D.&L. THEATER

Favorite Star in Thrilling Football Play Today

Everyone is talking football—the big game when the University of California meets Washington and Jefferson at the tournament of roses next Monday. But Ralph Allan of the T. D. & L. theater claims the big game won't have anything on "Two Minutes to Go," the Charles Ray feature showing at his theater today and tomorrow only, in which the most exciting football game ever staged is portrayed and in which Charles Ray, a former gridiron star, plays champion line-smasher of his team.

Charles Ray may well be called one of the most versatile stars of the motion picture world. He has played the coward, the country boy, the small-town beau brummel, the pugilist, the traveling salesman and a score of other characters. And now, in his latest First National attraction, "Two Minutes to Go," Ray has the role of a college football hero who is earning his way through school by peddling milk in the early hours of the morning.

"Two Minutes to Go" is a story from the skillful pen of Richard Andre. It is filled with the spirit of romance, adventure and pranks of college life, with that great American game, football, as the virile backbone of the plot.

Many humorous situations have been developed in this photoplay, and, of course, the gridiron gladiator who is the central figure, has a sweetheart.

Charles Ray personally directed "Two Minutes to Go," as well as enacting the star part, which in itself is evidence enough of his versatility. He has surrounded himself with an excellent cast, Mary Anderson appearing in the leading feminine role. Other well-known players who support Ray in this production include Lionel Belmore, Lincoln Stedman, Trueman Van Dyke, Gus Leonard, Tom Wilson, Bert Woodruff, Francois Dumas and Phillip Dunham.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.
